The Spiritual Practice of Remembering
March 7, Earlham School of Religion
8am-4:15 pm: esr.earlham.edu/SG20

Our one constant is change. We're continuously moving between happy and sad, hopeful and fearful, and any other pair of opposites we can think of. It often feels like the roller coaster will never stop and the to-do list will never end. We forget our divine nature and misidentify with our attachments and fears. We take ourselves to be our accomplishments, our failures, our anxiety. We have to actively work to remember who we truly are.

Learn simple practices that will support your ongoing efforts to ground your identity in Divine Mystery and remember what matters most in the midst of everyday life.
